

Bird & Bird Regulatory & Public Affairs

In an EU environment with 24 official languages, 27 Member States, 183 diplomatic missions, 705 Members of the European Parliament and 23,000 European Commission officials, how do you make sure the voice of your business is heard above all the noise?

Bird & Bird has now extended its market-leading legal and regulatory expertise to provide creative, timely and pragmatic advice in a public affairs context. Our Regulatory & Public Affairs team works at the intersection of politics, bureaucracy and business reality. We have the experience your organisation needs to navigate the complex decision-making processes.

Bird & Bird understands that legislation is not made in a political vacuum, but is influenced by the broader political context. We integrate our international offices into one team to provide you with a seamless, cross-jurisdictional regulatory consultancy service. Our outlook is global, even when solving complex issues at a local level.

Our sector specialists go beyond the textbook explanations of how the EU decision-making procedure works, to help you understand how the system actually functions in real life. Our broad network of relationships with the EU institutions will help clients to ensure that decisions affecting their business are not taken without their voice being heard.

At Bird & Bird, we spend a great deal of our time analysing our clients' sectors, anticipating trends and assessing the impact of regulatory and policy changes. We advise on cutting-edge issues in highly regulated sectors including technology, communications, life science, healthcare, media, sports, automotive, financial services and energy.

“Outstanding TMT practice with particularly reputable offices in the Netherlands, Germany and the UK. Market-leading team in the area of satellite communications regulations. Acts for clients including network operators and public bodies on a range of matters including mass surveillance, frequency regulation and the use of big data.”
